

VIEWS OF NOTABLES.

NOT THEIR PERSONAL OPINIONS,
BUT THEIR LATEST PORTRAITS.

The Emperor of Japan, Bismarck and Lord Tennyson Have Recently Faced the Photographer—Progress of the "Yankees of the Orient."

Three very great men have recently given to the world the latest views of themselves—that is, each having done something to attract attention, has sat for his picture. Tennyson has launched his new play, "The Foresters," and Bismarck has again become so active in German affairs that there is talk of his return to power. The latest pictures of these two as presented here look familiar enough, but it may excite surprise to learn that the third is that of the emperor of Japan.

EMPEROR MUTSUHITO.

His majesty, Mutsuhito, is, however, really a man of more importance for the future than either of the others, for he is in the midst of his great work. No other country in the world probably has made such swift advances in the past twenty-five years as Japan, and it is largely the work of this ruler. The Japanese were long ago called the "Yankees of the Orient," and since 1867 they have adapted their systems of trade, dress, society and government to the western model so rapidly that they are counted among the most advanced of nations. They are indeed a peculiar people, and among their many peculiarities not the least is that they are the only nation in the world practically without a religion.

On the 13th of February, 1867, Mutsuhito succeeded his father in the midst of that extraordinary revolution which made the mikado supreme and opened the country to foreigners. The next year he was crowned and in 1869 married a noble lady named Haruko. Of their children but one survives, and that is Prince Yoshihito-Haruko Miga, who was crowned in 1889 as heir apparent. Although the progress of the country has been so rapid and all western visitors are enthusiastic as to its future, so much remains to be done that the future of the liberal Mutsuhito is of interest to the world. Certainly his action in sitting for a portrait to please the Europeans shows a remarkable change from the days when the mikado lived absolutely secluded.

It is probable that no man's career is more familiar to Americans than is that of Bismarck. Suffice it then to say that he was born April 1, 1815, and is therefore seventy-seven years old, but of such a firm constitution that it is quite possible he may serve the empire many years yet.

BISMARCK.

When he entered public life Austria was the dominant power in Germany, and there were some thirty distinct and independent principalities, and when he retired all these were in one great empire, and it practically supreme in Europe, while Austria had become little more than an annex to the once oppressed Hungary.

Alfred Tennyson was born in 1809, the third of twelve children of a Lincolnshire clergyman. He began in childhood to write poetry, and at the age of twenty gained the chancellor's medal at Cambridge for his poem in blank verse entitled "Timbuctoo." His latest production is "The Foresters," a rhymed play setting forth scenes in England in the days of Robin Hood, and in honor of its appearance he gives this portrait to the world.

The Midnight Revel.
ANNA L. MAC KENNA.
The moonbeams stole in on the casement
And fell on the old attic floor,
Where the mice played the games of their kind,
Among the papers and books left in store.
They roused the World and the Herald
They nibbled the Mail and Express,
And their great appetites did not slacken
Till they made Judge a queer-looking mess.
But safe in one dark distant corner
On a bench all THE CITIZENS lay,
No doubt they were trembling with terror
Lest their enemies happened that way.
One little fur-coated rascal,
Being eager for conquests more high,
Betook himself right to that corner
And called all his friends to draw nigh.
But when they had looked o'er the papers,
They said, "They have power to bewitch."
And decided their lives would be ruined
If they fared on a diet so rich.
While yet the pale moonbeams were shining
On the dust-covered old attic floor,
Their voices united in wishing
Success to THE CITIZEN's cormore.

A Female Statesman's Idea.

"When from untoward circumstances beyond the control of man, occasioned by a disastrous fire, a flood, a failure of crops, or a famine, a city or a town may become impoverished, it becomes the duty of the Government to afford the necessary assistance, not as a charity, but because governments are instituted among men for necessary protection. The good of the State, as well as that of the individual, requires this. Not only should food and clothing be supplied, but other comforts also." From the above we should infer that the talented lady is heartily in favor, among "other comforts," of obtaining a large supply of Coward's comfortable Common Sense Shoes, at 270 and 272 Greenwich Street, New York.—Advt.

Mr. and Mrs. Frederick
Rejoice BecauseHood's Sarsaparilla Rescued Their Child from Scrofula.

For Scrofula, Salt Rheum, and all other foul humors in the blood of children or adults, Hood's Sarsaparilla is an unequalled remedy. Read this:
"We are so thankful to Hood's Sarsaparilla for what it did for our little girl that we make this statement for the benefit of other anxious parents and

Suffering Children

Our girl was a beautiful baby, fair and plump and healthy. But when she was two years old, sores broke out behind her ears and spread rapidly over her head and forehead down to her eyes, and into her neck. We consulted one of the best physicians in Brooklyn, but nothing did her any good. The doctors said it was caused by a scrofula humor in the blood. Her head became

One Complete Sore

offensive to the smell and dreadful to look at. Her general health waned and she would lay in a large chair all day without any life or energy. The sores caused great itching and burning, so that at times we had to restrain her hands to prevent scratching. For 3 years

She Suffered Fearfully

with this terrible humor. Being urged to try Hood's Sarsaparilla we did so. We soon noticed that she had more life and appetite. The medicine seemed to drive out more of the humor for a short time, but soon began to subside, the itching and burning ceased, and in a few months her head became entirely clear of the sore. She is now perfectly well, has no evidence of the humor, and her skin is clear and healthy. She seems like an entirely different child, in health and general appearance, from what she was before taking
